DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because the phrase "The present invention" should be deleted.
2. Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-3 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Aquillon.

Aquillon discloses in figures 1-9 a switch comprising a plate 10 securing a first electrolinking point 24 and a second electrolinking point 22 which are spaced apart; a rotatable block 28 having a first member 34; and a spring plate 20 fixed to the plate with a first end of the spring plate being fixed to the first electrolinking and forming a second member 35 engageable with the first member of the rotatable block. A second end of the spring plate being capable of adopting a first working position and a second working position with respect to the second electrolinking point. The spring plate moves between its two working positions based on the engagement of the first member and the second member. The first member of the rotatable block is a depressed cutout and the second member of the spring plate is a projection substantially conforming with the depressed cutout so that during rotation of the rotatable block, when the projection engages the depressed cutout, the second end of the spring plate contacts the second electrolinking point, and when the projection disengages the depressed cutout, the second end of the spring plate disconnects from the second electrolinking point. A rotatable shaft 36,38 is fixedly connected to the rotatable block.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claim 6 is allowed.

6. Claims 4, 5, 10, and 11 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Heath, Ward, Schwarzkopf, Poole, and Rolf teach various rotary members causing a spring plate to move between two working positions.
